

Stuston

Stuston is a village and civil parish in the north of Mid Suffolk, just south of Diss on the intersection of the A140 and the A143.

The settlement has very few of its own community assets although those with means of transport will have easy access to its neighbouring larger settlements such as Diss and Eye.

The parish retains its church, All Saints, which is one of 38 round tower churches in the county.

The north of the parish is dominated by Diss Golf Club which separates Stuston from the town of Diss itself.

Stuston is well connected with the A143 and A140 passing through and close proximity to Diss Railway station whose trains come Norwich to Ipswich and then on to London.

Given the restrictions imposed by the Common Ground Regulations, Historic buildings, Local Green Space and concerns over surface water discharge, there are no plans for any development in Stuston Village.

Local Issues

- Speed and volume of traffic through the village
- Lack of footpaths and cycle routes to Diss
- Affordable and sustainable housing needed

Stuston Steering Group representatives:

Steve Leigh

I've lived in the village for five years. My background is in water supply management, land drainage & development planning having run own business for 20 years. Previously at Anglian Water as engineer and management of Developer Services Team. After appointment following a parish meeting, I joined D+DNP to offer whatever knowledge I have to the community at large.

Roger Greenacre

I'm a retired businessman, having owned a group of printing and packaging companies in the latter stages of my career. I have a post graduate degree in chemical engineering, working initially in the oil and chemical industries holding both executive and non-executive positions in a number of companies. In retirement I spend my time as chairman of Diss Golf Club and chairman of Stuston Parish Meeting.

I lived in the village for many years, but have recently re-located to Redgrave, and as a member of the Parochial Church Council managed a £250,000 restoration project at All Saints Church in Stuston funded largely from a grant from the Heritage Lottery Fund.
